Hello Jay,

First of all, thank-you for providing the update. I plan to review in more detail this week. At this time, I don't have questions regarding the update.

Regarding your question on EPA guidance on gas stations, I think the best agency to contact for any guidance on spill prevention and/or runoff would be the Idaho Department of Environmental Quality. There may be some applicable above ground or underground regulations for gas stations that I am not familiar with. In addition, IDEQ has the spill hotline phone numbers. I can also direct you to our on-scene coordinators at our office that deal with spill response. You can reach out to either Stephen Ball at 208-350-9107 or Eric Vanderboom at 208-378-5755. There are various local and/or federal regulations that may be applicable to gas stations so I suggest starting with IDEQ's regional office (Idaho Falls Region).

In addition, I found a few website links that may be helpful.

Let me know the information provided is helpful or if you need something additional.

Best regards,

Maria,

I am following up to see if you have any questions regarding the update I sent and if you need anything from me. Also, any chance you can point me in the direction of any EPA guidance on gas stations? We have an applicant looking to rebuild a commercial fuel filling station and our local regulations don't address spill prevention/runoff from the site very well.

Thank you,

Jay
